“What happens to our family home in the event of a break-up or death?”

The Act contains provisions that affect reserve lands and occupancy of family homes located on the lands. It also provides rules for how the value of matrimonial real property on a reserve is shared in the event of a death, separation or divorce where at least one spouse or common-law partner is a First Nation member.

What Will Be Covered?

Rights available:

to common-law and married spouses on the breakdown of relationship

to the survivor on the death of their spouse or common-law partner

The process by which a First Nation can enact its own law for dealing with MRP.
